Hello Transportation Commission,

I often travel to the Colorado mountains for recreation in one of the most beautiful places on the planet.

Lately, I have noted a massive increase in OHV traffic in the Lake City region due to the CO149 pilot project. I come to Colorado for clean air, open vistas, silence, and a taste of the wild. Increased OHV traffic ruins all of this.

In an era of global warming, it's important to prioritize non-mechanized recreation. For reasons of safety, air pollution, and impacts to waterways, wildlife, and local communities, it's important this project be shut down rather than act as a model for the rest of the state to emulate.

Thank you,
