InRoads Menu Location

Did you know that your Bentley InRoads Menu always want to open on your primary monitor? Through discussions with Bentley, it has been determined that this phenomenon is by design. It is necessary because Laptop computers can be used to run InRoads, and if the InRoads menu was banked on the secondary monitor, it would be lost when the laptop was used stand-alone. If you drag the InRoads menu to your secondary screen, leaving only a very small sliver on the primary screen, the menu will stay banked and you won't have to move it each time you open InRoads. Thanks to Daniel Thomas with Region 4 Traffic.
