

InRoads

Point Densification

Did you know that linear DTM features have a point densification property which improves the definition of the surface without increasing the size of the DTM? This is useful for features with long straight sections.